Congressman Larson joined the Harriet Beecher Stowe Center in celebrating the groundbreaking of the Collections Preservation Project. Congressman Larson was influential in securing a $150,000 federal grant to support the Center's efforts. The Center is home to more than 200,000 artifacts, manuscripts, and items that illustrate important social themes in 19th century U.S. History.