

WASHINGTON –

Congressman John B. Larson

“The House made the right decision today. Despite their rhetoric, the Republicans preferred to let the amendment pass.”

“So while I commend Bob Goodlatte and our colleagues on both sides of the aisle who care deeply about the Constitution, I am disappointed that the House did not take the right action today.”

“I would note that even the Republican Budget Chairman, Paul Ryan, recognized that this amendment would be a bridge too far.”

###